Flint Public Library.

In presenting our twentieth annual report we find little to add to what has been said before in this connection. Our people continue to enjoy the advantages afforded them by our Library, if we can judge by the number of books taken from the Library, or the number, particularly of our young people, pupils in our schools, who are to be found at the reading table consulting books of reference on subjects connected with their studies.

About fifty new books have been purchased during the year, and until another supplement is printed, the titles of new books will be found on a bulletin near the librarian's desk.

We trust that the fact is borne in mind, that while we are indebted to the kindness of the late Hon. Charles L. Flint for our library building, and most of the books contained in it, the running expenses, furnishings and conveniences of the Library are procured by funds provided for us through the thoughtfulness of the late B. F. Emerson, thus placing us under a debt of gratitude which we can honorably discharge only by using these privileges to the best of our ability.

We are often congratulated by people from out of town upon having a fine Library building and good selection of books, particularly by summer residents, who gratefully accept the same privileges that are enjoyed by our own citizens.

The following publications are to be found in the reading room :

Weeklies:—Youth's Companion, Life, Harper's, Scientific American, Woman's Journal and Good Roads. The last two are furnished gratuitously by the publishers.

Monthlies:—Atlantic, Antiquarian, Century, Scribner's, New England Magazine, Forum, Review of Reviews, McClure's Magazine, Munsey's Magazine, Our Dumb Animals and St. Nicholas. The Traveller's Record is sent to us gratuitously, and we are indebted to some unknown friend for the Woman's Home Companion.
